Jenny's Cottage, in the heart of a typical Cornish fishing port is within easy reach of the many delights of West Cornwall.

The cottage is named after the fishing boat 'The Jenny Lind', owned by the family who occupied the cottage over a hundred years ago. They in turn named their vessel after the famous Victorian singer, Jenny Lind, known as 'the Swedish Nightingale'.

NEWLYN • CORNWALL

The cottage is situated in the old quarter of Newlyn, away from the bustle of the busy fish market, but only a short stroll to the Strand where you can buy fresh fish and crab for your evening meal. It is an excellent holiday home for up to six people.

Like most of the traditional homes in Newlyn, it is built of Cornish granite and local timber. While retaining the character of the original cottage, it has been furnished to provide modern standards of comfort. In colder weather, the sitting room can be warmed by electricity or a traditional coal or wood burning fire.

Dating from the days of horse-drawn vehicles, no allowance was made for parking in front of the property, but today there is a 'pay and display' car park nearby on the Strand.

However, unloading and loading is not a problem when you arrive and leave.

The accommodation consists of an entrance hall, sitting room and a kitchen with the usual facilities including a microwave oven and a washer/dryer. From the kitchen there is access to a small walled yard.

The bathroom with a hand basin, W.C., bath and separate shower is also situated on the ground floor. Stairs from the entrance hall lead to the two main double bedrooms on the first floor. A winding staircase then leads to 'the crow's-nest' with spacious beamed accommodation and two single beds, ideal for younger members of the family.

A television and a video are provided in the sitting room.

We regret that pets cannot be accommodated.

Newlyn has most general shops and a Post Office. There are also pubs and restaurants specialising in local fish and seafood.

Although the cottage is tucked away in a traffic free corner, it is within easy walking distance of the historic Newlyn Art Gallery, the Pilchard Works Museum, The Meadery and the lively and colourful fishing harbour.

Penzance, just over a mile away, is the main shopping centre for the area. There is a frequent bus service to both Penzance and the picturesque village of Mousehole in the opposite direction. There is also a pleasant coastal walk to both.

Beyond Newlyn there is access to the unrivalled Cornish countryside. It is an excellent base from which to explore the many coves and beaches of the Land's End Peninsula.
