MOUSEHOLE
CORNWALL

The Old Post Office is situated in the centre of the picturesque village of Mousehole, overlooking the harbour, and is an excellent holiday home for up to four people.

The accommodation consists of a sitting room, kitchen/diner, two bedrooms (one with a double bed, the other with two single beds), a cot is also available. There is an upstairs bathroom with a shower over the bath and a WC, an additional WC and wash-hand basin is located downstairs. A colour television and video are provided. There is also a microwave oven and a washer/dryer as well as the usual kitchen facilities.

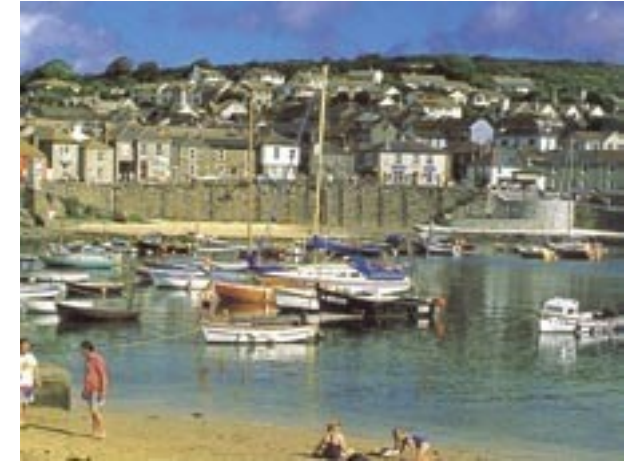

It is regretted that pets cannot be accommodated.

Like most of the traditional homes in the village, the Old Post Office was built of Cornish granite. Dating from the days of horse-drawn vehicles, no allowance was made for parking in front of the house. However, today there are three car parks in the village which only charge £2 or £3 for the whole day.

There is a pleasant, small beach in the harbour area, but due to the tide, it is not exposed at all times. There are several excellent larger beaches within a ten mile radius.

The village has a small general store, Post Office, home-made ice cream shop, craft shops, 'the Ship Inn', cafes, a fish and chip shop and several restaurants.

Penzance, three miles from Mousehole, is the main shopping centre in the area. There is a frequent bus service from the village, through Newlyn, into Penzance. The bus stop is about 100 yards from the Old Post Office.

Beyond the village, the coastal path to Lamorna Cove offers magnificent scenery and there are walks into the heart of the unrivalled Cornish countryside. Mousehole is an excellent base from which to explore the many coves and beaches of the Land's End Peninsula.
